RULES FOR CONSULTING THE CATALOGUE

1) Finding the spare parts

In order to find the correct spare parts illustrated and numbered in the catalogue :

- a) consult the "list of models" (on page 17) to identify the numerical code of the part involved.
- b) consult the sub-group index, page 18, the spare parts index, page 19, the plates and lists of the corresponding spare parts in the catalogue, as indicated in 2, 3 and 4.

2) List of spare parts

This includes the replacement parts of all the sub-groups in the plates and the parts supplied as "sets" in progressive numerical order.

3) New parts and obsolete parts

The parts marked * are new parts included since the last updating.

A list of exhausted, obsolete and replaced parts is given on the last few pages of the index.

4) Plates

These represent the spare parts of each sub-group. Each plate contains (on the right-hand side) the sub-group number and any sheet number, the sub-group designation (in the middle) and data about the validity of the plate (on the left-hand side) with the codes for the models as indicated in 1 a.

5) Identification of modified parts and assemblies

As various modifications are made during the life of the machine, a distinction has to be made between the original parts and the redesigned parts. Replacement or interchangeability of parts are indicated by symbols or frame numbers stating from when the modification is effective.

Validity information

- From the frame number
 174.001.001 → 174.001.004 = 174.001.001 to 174.001.004 inclusive

700840101 (174.001.005 →) = Second part only = interchangeable with the first
- 700730020 (174.001.004 → 174.001.004)
700840101 (174.001.005 →) = No-interchangeable parts
Order in accordance with the frame number
- (700051393) = $\frac{700051773 + 700051810}{+ 700701400}$ = Part substituted by a set of parts
- (700051773 + 700051810)
(+ 700701400) 700840101 = Set of parts substituted by one part.
- (700051393) = Obsolete part

6) Usual outside fasteners and parts

- The usual screws and bolts and parts used on this equipment are indicated by the abbreviations shown on pages 13 to 16 of the catalogue.
- The quality of the usual screws and bolts is indicated in the sub-group 10.01.1 in the table below the abbreviations.
